SCOTT SPEAKS - LISTEN TO THE RADIO!

We all shout out to Brad, calling him an asshole, and he is. But if you pay close attention to the scene in which, on that stormy night, Brad and Janet are driving down that dark, deserted road. If you really listen hard you will hear a real asshole. Thats right, our own ex-president Richard M. Nixon. What you are really hearing is our ex-president making his infamous resignation speach, a historical event captured for all time in this most historical film. And they say the R.H.P.S. has no socially redeeming value?

THANX

A thank you to all of those who attended our anniverary show last week. We felt that it was very successful. The audience was really into taking part in the movie and the lines were done very well. We hope all of those people come back again as much as possible. We know they'll come back at least once because they all got free passes to come again. Then again, we hope everyone comes as much as possible.

TEN YEARS AGO

It's ironic that Dr. Scott (Bob of Scott Speaks) chose to speak about ex-president Nixon's resignation speach. It was 10 years, June 17, 1972, that the Watergate break-in occured. Nixon resigned as president in September, 1973. This leads to a famous RHPS movie goof. As Brad and Janet drive through a thundering rainstorm, Nixon delivers his resignation speach on the radio. The narrator says that this occurs on a "late November evening." MISTAKE!

SCOTT SPEAKS AGAIN -

"This sonic transducer ...."

By Bob Andoscia

Being "a science teacher at Denton High School," "I happen to know a great deal about a lot of things." One of which being sonic transducers. They range from the common to the bizzar. Most commonly are the ones we all use everyday, meaning microphones and loudspeakers. But there are others. For example, armys use percussion grenades which can kill if set off close enough, or may even cause mental and physcological damage. Then there are other devices which can produce sounds of such intensity that they can burst every blood vessel in the body and even demolish small buildings and other such structures. Frightning, eh? So maybe the "Audio Vibratory Physiomoleclar Transport Device" used in the RHPS to "send them to another planet" may not be so unbelievable afterall ("It's something we ourselfs have been working on for quite sometime").

****

Remember, the RHPS Letter Line is always open. Any questions or remarks about us, you, the movie, the charactors, the actors, or anything. It's only at my kitchen table. Somebody say something to me. Got anything at all you want to say something about - politics, religion, liquer, drugs, sex, UFO's - let's hear it! Want to tell me to go to hell, go ahead and write.
