ROCKY HORROR COMES TO AVON

The Rocky Horror Picture Show has come to the Avon Repertory Cinema. Of course, you all know that by now because you must be here to read this. Nevertheless, this is the historical first weekend and what we hope will be the begining of a new era of Rocky Horror in Providence.

It's only natural that the show should be here in Providence anyway. The Avon is right in the middle of Brown University, so students need only walk to get to the show instead of driving their cars. RISD students are also within leg distance. RIC and PC students will also benefit in that they will find the location of the Avon closer than the previous location.

Most importantly, it is good that the show has a home in the city of Providence. Providence... Think about it. There is something about Providence that is very special, it is just that few people can describe it in words. Providence is where pidgeons walk all around the people, just close enough to be near without you touching them. Providence is also where Steven and Brock live (one of Brock's favorite sleeping boxes is said to be behind the Avon Cinema). Certainly, Providence and Rocky Horror were made for each other. They go together like steak and potatoes.

We of the RHPS Cast are hoping everyone has a good time at the show. It is audience participation that has made Rocky Horror what it is today in having good, clean, albeit wierd fun.

If anyone has anything to say or ask about the RHPS, about the movie, about the cast, about the audience, or about anything else about anything, we'd like to hear from you. Even if you want to say something really mean and nasty, like "You stink," send it along.
