ROCKY Halloween SHOW

Welcome to "Halloween Horror," the CTC's way of celebrating Halloween and Rocky Horror all at once. The holiday and the show have been intertwined throughout the past ten years. This year, despite announcements that it was earlier this month, the show's 10th anniversary is being celebrated on Halloween instead. In New York's Beacon Theatre, a special showing will take place. Richard O'Brien, Little Nell, and producer Lou Adler will be there. Tickets are $25.00. Here, we will have our own celebration for $3.00.

As part of tonight's show, the audience will take a big part in the celebration. A costume contest will be held for audience members and judged by audience members. Prizes will be awarded to the top 3 finishers.

Showing Rocky Horror marks a break from the traditional showings at midnight on Friday and Saturday nights, as we are presenting it on a Thursday at 10:00. But we hope the earlier time attracts more people to come. The last time the RHPS was shown on Halloween was in 1983 at the Cable Car in Providence. It was shown on a Sunday night at 12. We got 11 people that night. Perhaps we'll do better with the new format tonight.

A DAY TO BE NORMAL

Throwing Pumpkins

Rumors that pumpkins would be allowed into the theatre this weekend are false. The same goes for gords and other traditional Halloween fruit. Orange streamers, however, will be allowed. One to a customer. RR

We are still looking for cast members all the time, both male and female. All you need is desire and co-operation. So quit thinking about it and just do it. Thinking about it is just useless after the first thought.

Tuesday is election day. You should all vote. Our recommendations follow:

What makes Halloween such a special day for Rocky Horror is that it makes dressing up in rather unique garp a normal happening. For one night, people in the cast are not the only ones looking different. As a matter of fact, we fit right in. No one will stare at us. We will be no big deal. We'll be normal.

What's good for the audience is that all inhibitions can be dropped and they can be the way the way they want to be. We'll finnally get to see what really goes on inside those heads of yours.

We hope to see a lot of people in Rocky Horror dress too. In the past, I have been amazed at how well some people do in making costumes for one night that we use all the time. Maybe we can even sign up a new cast member or two.
