

Looking Ahead ...

The weekend of April 25-26 will mark the Rocky Horror Picture Show's one year anniversary here at the Cumberland Twin Cinemas. Be here for the entire month of April as we celebrate with special shows and events.

Is there anything you would like to see or do during anniversary month? Leave us a note in the suggestion box in the lobby (we always leave a pencil). Also, watch for more about the individual events in upcoming issues of RIR.

Friday Rehearsal - Saturday Amature Night

You won't have to look too far ahead to begin seeing something different. Friday night brings the return of a pre-show. We have a new Time Warp (Roxy music) number that we hope you enjoy. You'll also see the cast doing a few things different Friday as we rehearse for our Boston appearance Saturday. The rehearsal's purpose will be to acquaint our cast with the different physical layout of the Harvard Square Theatre.

On Saturday, there will be an amature cast sprinkled with a few veterans carrying on in our absense. We hope you cheer them on because they will be working hard and perhaps they will surprize you.

SPACE PROBE SPOTS CASTLE

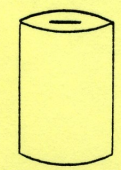

In a surprize discovery, a space probe sent to get a close up of Halley Comet found a Castle nearby! Anybody got any ideas where THAT could have come from?

Crowd pleasing films offered

By Lou Costa

Imagine yourself calmly floating along in an innertube as a killer shark prepares to attack. Even better still, you're having a food fight in the cafeteria. Rice and toast are being pelted off your head as you grab your trusty squirtgun and take careful aim at the guy in front of you. Meanwhile a group of otherwise normal young men and women clad in fishnet stockings and garterbelts are performing a Rockette's style floor show before your very eyes.

Impossible? Not Really. Outrageous? Definitely. These are just a few of the zany motion picture events offered as a part of the film series here on campus.

Without a doubt, the most outrageous movies shown on campus can be seen on cult movie night. This is an annual event which consists of three movies that have achieved cult status. The focus of cult night is 'The Rocky Horror Picture Show', which has become the ultimate audience participation movie. Fans not only y replies to the on screen characters, they also bring props such as toast, rice and toilet paper to throw at each other during their appropriate scene the movie.

This past year, cult night featured a performance by the live Rhode Island Rocky Horror cast. These amateur performers acted out the entire movie beneath the screen in perfect synchronization with the real actors. They used their own props and wild costumes to create the ultimate 3-D movie experience. According to Roy Rossi, leader of the cast, "the SMU crowd was one of the largest and most responsive groups we've performed before in the cast's eight year existence.
