

German Virgin Explodes

Dear Rocky Horror People,

I wanted to comment on the rude way you treat "virgins." I went for my first time to your show last week and I brought rice, water-guns, toast and toilet paper, just like I was told. I was laughed at and ridiculed for being a virgin. OK, fine, but when I got yelled at for throwing rice, toast, and toilet paper I was F#@%ing pissed off!! I mean, isn't that what the RHPS is all about? For all you elieist, stuck-up, Rocky Horror groupies...F*%@ you, virgins have Rocky Horror spirit, you forgot about it. Maybe, now that I lost my "virginity," I'll go back and participate again, but remember, it's not audience participation if no one participates and yells at us who do.

To the cast - great show!!

Well, I don't know what to say here myself. There certainly is no rule against throwing that stuff unless it was at the cast. Or unless someone throws it viciously.

The last thing in the world I want to do is cause any agitation by tossing a little gasoline in the fire, but perhaps someone else in the audience could be called upon to respond to these remarks. I mean, does Katrin have a point here or what? Rr

That was NOT Phantasia

It was reported last week that the rock group that put on the excellent concert before the show was Phantasia. It was not Phantasia. It was another group, whose name I still have not been able to find out. This is not to say that Phantasia isn't a great group either. It's just that we've never seen them play here at the Meadowbrook. Which brings up another point. Will they??? RR

Meadowbrook Treats

Has anyone tried the latest big seller at the candy stand, "Meadowbrook Treats?" It's a fine concoction of the following: 2 sheets toilet paper, 3 tablespoons rice, slice of toast with peanut butter, 5 pops of popcorn, pot luck on 4 candy pieces, and a stick of ABC gum. All of these components are mesh-blended together by Meadowbrook-Seasoned soda siphoned off the Meadowbrook floor after a week of festering. You can get the Treat wet in a cup or dry in ball-shape inside baked newspaper. Take the gulp or bite and try MEADOWBROOK TREATS! rr
