

RI Cast visits Groton

Well, this week's title is a mirror image of last week's title. Now WE are visiting THEM (or YOU, depending on which theatre you're sitting in as you read this). The last time we did the show at Groton was almost a year ago.

Like any 2 places, there are some marked differences between the 2 theatres. Physically, the difference is that the UA has 1 aisle and stretches back far, while the Meadowbrook has 2 aisles and is shaped more square-like. The audiences are very different. At the Meadowbrook, the audience tends to shift to the back. When we visited the UA last year, the audience sat up close up front.

What else fascinating can I tell you? How about the origins of the Groton/Rhode Island relationship? No? You've heard about all that enough times already. How about the history of the 2 casts from ... No? Ok. Tell you what. Just have a good show, whether you be in Groton tonight or Warwick. To the Groton audience & cast - thank's for having us. To the Warwick audience on Saturday night - remember that this night's cast may not be the best you ever saw (it had better not be), but they will be trying their best.

Behind the Scenes

Next, Riff & Magenta dragged Eddy's dead carcass out of the cooler. They somehow hoisted the body onto the butcher's table. After cutting out a few parts of the body and flinging them into the oven, Magenta asked Riff "Vhat do we do with the rest of the body?" With a grimace and a smile, Riff said "Let's take the top of the dinner table off & drop it in there!"
