Complete Meadowbrook RIR package

People have come up to me and asked HOW they could get a complete collection of ALL the issues of the RIR at the Meadowbrook, from week # 1. Well, soon, a package will be offered to anyone seeking such a collection. The price will be $3.00 (it takes WORK to put all this together), with all proceeds going to the cast treasury. That comes out to less than 3¢ an issue.

CTC Record Chasing

Finally, the true # weeks that Rocky Horror played at the CTC has been verified. It's 122 weeks. Our 122th week here would be Jan. 19-20, 1990. Thus, the record is busted on Jan. 26-27, 1990. Think we'll do something special for that one?

Santa Watch: It's Time to Start Worrying, A Lot

Last week we reported that Mr. Santa Claus was missing for 24 hours, but that people needn't be alarmed. We felt that Santa, who was on a 3-hour practice run with his deers, probably encountered a few minor problems & that he just temporarily set down. That prognostication now appears to have been severely optimistic. A week later, there is STILL no Santa, & something is WRONG. VERY wrong!

One badly bruised reindeer, Dixon, stumbled it's way in Thursday, looking horrified. While the deers are quite able to understand English, they do not speak. One elf-helper who is good at understanding deers spoke of a very bleak and shocking scenario taking place! From what could be understood, the sled hit a big storm and crashed in Greenland. Dancer broke 3 legs, and Prixon 1. A nearby wolf attacked Dancer, but was fought off. The sled is totally ruined. Santa started burning toys for heat. The rest is confusing. He walked toward the injured Dancer with a medical kit, and confusion broke out. That's all that the elf-helper could get from Dixon, who has fallen into comatose!

The elves, having trouble at this critical point carrying on without their leader, are still toy-making. Rumors are that moral is low & production off. Plus there is the loss of the burnt toys and sled?

Remember people, things are bleakest BEFORE the Brightest Hour! The Spirit of Christmas has overcome many a woe. While the situation looks down now, it's NOT over yet! And don't forget MRS. CLAUS! SHE'S still there to save Christmas! The elves will have to pull together. Santa must come up with a solution and fight back!

There MUST be a conclusion in next week's RIR, because next week is Christmas, or there will be ... no Christmas. Santa MUST come thru!!!
